Using the University’s Academic License through the Copyright Clearance Center

The University has purchased an Academic License with the Copyright Clearance Center (CCC). All faculty and staff may use the print materials found within the CCC database for educational purposes (under the terms and conditions set forth with each journal).

The CCC website is relatively easy to use, and can be found here:
http://www.copyright.com

To determine whether or not you may use a print resource in Blackboard, in a course pack, or as a classroom handout, under our CCC license, enter the title of the item in the “Get Permission” search box.

Click on the title and then click on the “academic license options” tab. A green check mark denotes permission to use under our license; a slashed red circle signifies we are not able to use the material under the license.

When you are able to use the material, roll over the “TERMS” to review the rights holders’ terms specific to that item. There may be conditions placed on how much of the material may be used.

Remember:
(1) CCC shares with you those items that you may use under our academic license, and identifies the ways you may share the material with your students, but it does not actually provide the material. You must have a legal copy of the material to be used.

(2) When locating the material, there may be more than one journal with the same title; use the ISSN to assist you in locating the exact journal you want. One ISSN may be the print version, one the electronic version.

Examples:
(1) Exceptional Children Journal
   This journal is covered by our Academic license with the Copyright Clearance Center (CCC). We may post these pdfs of the articles directly into BB.

(2) Behavior Analysis in Practice
   Cannot use this journal under our CCC License.

(3) Journal of Evidence-Based Practices for School
   Cannot be found within the CCC database.
